"Spatiality and non-Textual Elements in Qara- and Aqquyunlu Epigraphy (15th Century CE Eastern Anatolia and Western Iran)"

The representational courtly culture of the 'Turkmen' dynasties of the so-called Qara- and Aqquyunlu is a fascinating example for the elaboration and scope of multiple iconographical repertoires and mediums, and the ways in which these were negotiated and deployed at Islamicate courts. This presentation builds on a critical (re)edition of the corpus of Qara- and Aqquyunlu courtly epigraphy and engages with spatiality and non-textual elements as two salient dimensions that structure this epigraphic corpus.

On the level of spatiality, I will reconstruct the positionality of courtly epigraphy within the entangled urban sphere of Iṣfahān and demonstrate how this spatial dispersion mirrors the internal hierarchies of provincial and superordinate courts. Subsequently, I present the intriguing case of the so-called ‘tamgha’ of the Aqquyunlu as a non-textual element that is deployed in some of the epigraphic contexts of courtly representation.
